

Lanny L Lee

Lanny was born and raised in the Bloomsburg area. He graduated from Central Columbia High School in 1965 and Bloomsburg University in 1969. Lanny was a speech therapist and served the students of the Millville and Benton School Districts for over 30 years. His balloon talents developed as a result of rewarding his speech students for a job well done.

While at church one Sunday, a man made an apple balloon for Lanny's son, Jim. Lanny thought that would be a nice reward for his speech students-an apple from the teacher. After receiving apple balloons for some time, a youngster asked "What else can you make?" The multitude of balloon critters that Lanny makes were born from answering that young man's question.

"The Balloon Guy" is a regular at two area restaurants. Company picnics, community events, and corporate holiday parties, are among his regular customers. Lanny can often be seen at Bloomsburg University Program Board events. He is one of the university student's favorite entertainers.

Lanny is married to Ann Lee, they have two children, Heather and Jim, and delight in six grandchildren.
